Many folks try to forget about his dying for their River colled at Mrs. Robert M. Bean of Sunday And shall I add that modern Saturday afternoon. preaching is little tinctured with it? A minister's wife (not living in Bethel now) said she would not have a Scripture text calendar hanging in her house for her children to look upon the picture of the "crucifixion." That's one of the faults in this age; but, some have no scruples whatever, as to the kind of a picture their children may see at the "movies." I fear our children know little or nothing about the price Jesus paid for our great salvation. In later years, the nothers may weep over the "waywardness" of their sons and daughters. There is a "shrinking" and shameless modesty about enlightoning the tender minds of our very own upon these vital things. Perchance your children attend some Sunday School a part of the year to swell the attendance, are you going to leave it wholly to the teacher to bring out in her talks all that is necessary about Christ's sacrifice. Perhaps, it is not mendoned even there. I have known (looking back over the years) Thurches and Sunday schools where this topic was never mentioned. CHAPTER I.—Theodore Gatlin de-olded to adopt a baby in a final ef-fort to solve his matrimonial troulies. But all his love for their fos-ter daughter could not shelter her childhood from the hatred of his wife, who had never wanted her. Their affairs ended in the divorce court but ten-year-old Penelope was given into the keeping of Mrs. Gat-Mn, except for two Sunday after-goons a month. On their first day together they set out joyfully to a baseball game. A ball, hit into the bieachers, struck Penelope on the nose and the neurotic, Mrs. Gat-Mn removed her from the hospital to which her former husband had hurricd her. Mrs. Gatlin spirited hurricd her. Mrs. Gatlin spirited the child to Europe. Gatlin retired from business, willed Penelope all his money, and was about to begin a search for his daughter when a motor accident ended his life.

CHAPTER II.—Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, a rising young psychiatrist, was presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl whose terrible childhood had left her with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" was in part responsible. McNamara did not think the ways a responsible. did not think she was a responsible criminal and obtained Burt's expert testimony in court. Even Lan-ny, the doctor's falthful office aurse, was won over to her cause despite Nance's hard-boiled exterior, CHAPTER III.—Nance's criminal record outweighed Doctor Burt's clear explanation of her case and she was sent to San Quentin peni-tentiary for two years, Lanny vis-ited her and Nance persuaded her to smuggle out a letter which a confederate stole from her handbag outside the prison walls.

CHAPTER IV.—Nance escaped, alspeed-boat manned by friends and went to Lanny's apartment. Lanny told Chief McNamara, who ordered her to bring Nance to his apart-ment and phoned for Doctor Burt.

CHAPTER V.—One of the men in the boat on which Nance escaped— two of them ex-convicts, the other a bootlegger—had been wounded and they went to Burt's office, where McNamara found them. The bootlegger he let go and he took the others to his home, ordering the uninfused one to core uninjured one to care for Nance and his pal. From them he learned that Nance's real name was Penelope Gatlin. Detective Sergeants Flynn and Angelloti, seeking the reward offered for Nance's apprentiantly want to Language and the reward offered for Nance's apprentiant want to Language and the learness of the second second for Nance's apprentiant want to Language apprentiant to the second s dension, went to Lanny's apartment in search of Nance. Looking over her San Quentin cell, McNamara found a blank check on a San Jose

"Do You happen to have an account in the name of Penelope Gatlin?" Chief McNamara asked the banker.

"Both a trust account and a checkng account, Chief. We had her father's account for years before he was unfortunately killed in an autonobile accident some eight years go. We had the account of his diforced wife for quite a while, too, but she has closed that."

"Do you know where she lives at

"I do not." He was interested. 6,782,270.21 But I remember her quite well—a cry beautiful woman. Her first $15,510,407.69 usband was a splendld chap—reall shoe dealer in this city, and ery prosperous. He and his wife LTY COMPANY and a row and she divorced him Building and got the child. Gatlin was perchigan nitted by the court to have the fulld on two Sunday afternoons a nonth, and one day he took her to ball game and they sat in the Bank, 270,803,21 eachers. A long hard ball flow nto the blenchers and flattened the 4,018.31 103.674.51 ittle girl's nose; Gatlin rushed the 544,487.41 neonscious child to a hospital and the privilege, and McNamara went through the checks carefully, noting those drawn in favor of Ella Cates. The last one drawn was in favor of a man named Hugh P. Taylor, in sum of five thousand dollars, and deposited by him to the credit of his account in the Federal Trust company of San Francisco.

"I have all the information I want, with this exception." He drew forth one of the rogue's gallery photographs made at the central station by the police photographer. "Is that Penelope Gatlin?" "That's the girl, Chief. Is she in trouble with the police?" Dan McNamara laughed. "Not at all. She's the sweetest little thing on earth. The only trouble she's been in is that she's been lost. Amnesia. Can't remember who she is or anything about her past life. Has several aliases she used at will."

"How interesting-and how sad." "Neither interesting nor sad—to me. We handle lots of cases like this. They're curable. You'll be good enough to regard this interview as strictly confidential, of course. It would be very embarrassing for the girl if news of her unfortunate predicament should leak out, for, of course, after her mind has been restored to its normal functions, she will have no memory of the period in which she has been lost. I know a doctor that will fix her up in jig time."

"And after he's done that," the banker suggested, "have a plastic surgeon fix her nose. She used to be as lovely as a violet."

"Sorry about the nose," McNamara fled, "but I've had the best plastic surgeons in town examine it and there's no hope." He held out his hand. "Thanks for your courtesy. You've been a great help. Meanwhile, don't send out any more of those bank statements and dead checks. Mum's the word."

He found a woman, an old offender, booked for drunkenness, and ordered her sent to his office. When she arrived he locked the door, and fingerprinted her on the appropriate hard to get control of it, but she card, after which he lectured her on the error of her ways. Then he went upstairs to the identification bureau and asked the filing clerk to have pointed out to him the filing cabinets containing criminal records for the year 1914-15 and 1916. He was searching for a face that was photographed on his remarkable memory, and at last he found it, It was that of a young woman, blackhaired and with a "saddle" nose, but not quite so badly deformed as Nance Belden's nor did the contour of the face resemble Nance Belden's. However, since the original of that photograph had, to the chief's knowledge, been dead six months, he decided it would do. He slipped this record into his breast pocket and went back to his office. Here he carefully removed the three photographs from the card to which they were pasted in a row across the top. ful. She isn't interested in this girl, Nance Belden. It happened this way. Pregarded that girl as a nut, see and haven't any confidence in the bone that does our medico-legal work. So I took Nance up'to see Dr. Stephen Burt. Miss Lanning is his nurse. She was very kind to the girl-very understanding-and the Belden brat got stuck on her. She has an affection complex, understand."

Flynn and Angelloti nodded languidly.

"Apparently," the chief continued, "Nance hasn't any friends. The poor, lonely kid remembered Miss Lanning, so she wrote and asked her to visit her in the pen-and now the warden swears she smuggled out of San Quentin, a letter with Nance's plan of escape. Well, maybe she did, but if she did, Miss Lanning didn't know it.

"Now, when the Belden girl came to Miss Lanning's home she realized she couldn't harbor her. Within'a minute after the girl entered. Miss Lanning had me on the phone.

"'I've just heard a thump out in the hall,' says she. 'I think the girl's fainted. Better let me put her to bed, Chief, and have Doctor Burt come over to bandage her wound; then the ambulance can call for her in the morning.'

"I thought that was a good idea. When she came back Nance was just going out of the door. The trouble was that Miss Lanning thought the girl was unconscious, but Nance ! heard her and beat it. Now it's up to you two to find her."

"How long have you known Miss Lanning?"

"Quite a while." McNamara lied. "Leave her alone from now on and don't waste your time watching her house. The Belden devil won't come back there again. That will be all, boys."
